Release and indemnities

The person applying for funds (the Applicant) agrees to let go of any claims against the organisation providing the funds (the Funder). The Applicant also acknowledges that the Funder is not responsible for any losses, penalties, damages, or costs that the Applicant may experience during or because of the funded project.

Once the Funder pays the agreed-upon funds, the Applicant promises to protect the Funder from any legal actions, claims, losses, or expenses that the Funder might face due to the Applicant's actions or the actions of their representatives in connection with the project. This includes things like damage to property, harm to people, or financial losses suffered by anyone involved in the project.

This promise to protect the Funder continues even after the project is finished or abandoned. Each protection promise is separate from any other obligations the Applicant has to the Funder, and the Funder can enforce it before actually facing any losses. This agreement doesn't limit the Funder's rights in any way.

To be signed by the Applicant at the time of the application:
